Blind Passion: Unoaked vs. Oaked Chardonnay

How do you like your Chardonnay? Round, rich and voluptuous? Or lean, hard, and maybe, perhaps, just a bit austere? Maybe your gate swings the other way and you think you don't like Chardonnay at all. Whatever your preference, it is time to put your money where your mouth lives at our May Unoaked vs. Oaked Chardonnay Double Blind Tasting. In three flights we will present blind, and head to head within winery, an oaked and unoaked Chardonnay from St. Supery (Napa), an oaked and unoaked Chardonnay from Iron Horse (Russian River) and an oaked and unoaked Chardonnay from Yalumba (South Australia). These wine will be served with a mushroom-leek scramble followed by roast chicken. To make things more interesting, to each of those flights will be added one of the following Chardonnays from France: Domaine Servin Petit Chablis; Louis Michel & Fils Chablis Grand Cru; and Maison Gagnerot Huates Cotes de Beaune "Les Gueulottes". Just to increase the fun, the flights themselves will be presented blindly: you won't know till the end which flight came from which region. To calm your excited nerves, we will finish with a blind tasting of a Malolactic vs. non-Malolactic Chardonnay, both from Siduri (Russian River), served with grilled shrimp. We will start the tasting with a cute little sparkler (made from what grape you may ask?) served with grilled oysters, to ease your mind before you begin the difficult task of blind tasting (or tasting blindly). And, because it is May, the event will be held on the Lovely Mika Veranda. We hope to see you there!

This tasting is limited to 24 people as it is a single bottle tasting, so get your reservation in early. See you there!
